Answer any two questions from the following. All questions carry equal marks.

1. "Administrative law encompasses the different mechanisms and principles that enable people to question or challenge the decision of government ministers, government departments and statutory agencies. The courts play a significant role in securing government accountability but form only part of that picture." Critically discuss this proposition.
2. "Some have suggested that having a closer working relationship between the branches of government would end "gridlock" and lead to a more efficient government. Others have argued that the separation of powers was specifically created to "slow down" the pace of government to ensure cool deliberation and not emotional reactions." Critically examine the given statement. Does the separation of powers result in reasonable deliberation, or excessive delay?
3. "Conferment of an arbitrary, sweeping, uncontrolled discretion on an administrative authority violates Article 14 of the Constitution of India as it creates the danger of discrimination among those similarly situated which is subversive of the equality doctrine enshrined in Article 14." Amplify the given statement.
